What are the Friday Fusion Seminars?

The Stuart School of Business is committed to extending its learning objectives beyond the classroom. In the 2010 spring semester we initiated a bi-weekly seminar/discussion forum under the title "Living and Learning" (The "Living" component arose because the series was held in the university residence halls).

We have since renamed this series "Friday Fusion," to reinforce the concept that the individual presentations will link, or "fuse," the classroom component of your education with the experience of our invited hosts. In addition to providing a contemporary link to the classroom experience, the availability of Stuart School faculty, staff and real-world practitioners in a less formal atmosphere should foster valuable information exchanges.

All undergraduate business majors and minors are invited to the Seminar Series. Check your email for invitations throughout the semester.
